

Flora Temnouche

Flora Temnouche (1995) lives in Berlin. She was born and raised in France, studying Modern Literature and Art History in Paris at the Sorbonne, then attending the Kunstakademie Düsseldorf until 2023 in the class of Katharina Wulff. Her works have been exhibited in group and solo shows both in Europe and the United States in private galleries such as Galerie Elsa Meunier in Paris, Chilly Art Project in London, and Galerie Philia in New York. She has also exhibited in public spaces such as Ghetto Novo in Venice, the Kultur Bahnhof Eller and Kunstpalast Museum in Düsseldorf, Villa Maeterlinck Jean Nouvel in Nice, and has been selected for a residency at Palazzo Galli Talli in Florence. Flora Temnouche's paintings are stagings, diaries of daily fragments recorded through objects. The objects depicted are imbued with a sense of belonging and act as intermediaries between the closed space of the studio and the outside world. Light, color reflections, and the reflections of something outside the scene are the main mediators between these spaces. Temnouche's work also evokes moments she has experienced, memories not fully defined, much like her painting which renounces mimetic vocation in order to bind sensations as closely as possible with painting.
